There are several rules for choosing a course of action in risky situations. Do not risk more than you can afford to lose. Do not risk a lot for a little. Think about the consequences before you act, and keep a reserve fund.

There are several rules for choosing a course of action in risky situations. Do not risk more than you can afford to lose. Do not risk a lot for a little. Think about the consequences before you act, and keep a reserve fund.

There are several rules for choosing a course of action in risky situations. Do not risk more than you can afford to lose. Do not risk a lot for a little. Think about the consequences before you act, and keep a reserve fund.

There are several rules for choosing a course of action in risky situations. Do not risk more than you can afford to lose. Do not risk a lot for a little. Think about the consequences before you act, and keep a reserve fund.

There are several rules for choosing a course of action in risky situations. Do not risk more than you can afford to lose. Do not risk a lot for a little. Think about the consequences before you act, and keep a reserve fund.

There are several rules for choosing a course of action in risky situations. Do not risk more than you can afford to lose. Do not risk a lot for a little. Think about the consequences before you act, and keep a reserve fund.

Table 1: Decision matrix for risk insurance

Factors	Self-insurance	Partial	Insurance
Probability of loss	High	Medium	Very low
Severity of loss	Low	Medium	High
Consequences	Minor	Serious	Catastrophic